AROUND THE WORLD WITH THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

Public Health Nursing.

In the midst of its maintenance war duties the American Red Cross did not neglect its obligations to the civilian population at home. Throughout the conflict it maintained its Bureau of Public Health Nursing, instruction in first aid, home nursing and sanitation, and disaster relief. Particularly in their work for the babies was the public health nurse important. The accompanying photograph shows a Red Cross public health nurse instructing a mother in the proper preparation of the baby's diet.

KEYS—THEIR USE AND ABUSE

Concerning the Inventions of Locksmiths and the Disadvantages of Being Locked Out.

The key is an acknowledgment of man's depravity. If every man respected his neighbor's goods and privacy, we should not be burdened with carrying keys, in bags or pockets, hunting for them in a panic, and frequently losing or mislaying them. We have the care of a door key, an office key, a trunk key; a safety-box key (if we are coupon-cutters); our locker key, if we are sports, and automobile and garage keys, if we own these luxuries. Keys naturally multiply with our outward prosperity. Diogenes, living in a tub, was a happy man, as far as the responsibility of keys went, and although some people might prefer more roomy apartments for a permanent, at least Diogenes wasn't obliged to turn his toga pockets inside out in a vain attempt to locate his key—when returning to the tub after a brief sojourn at the club.

Key-rings, upon which you can concentrate your responsibilities, are sometimes desirable; on the other hand, if lost, the whole bunch must be replaced. I consider the mode of the public bath frequenter, that of wearing the bath-house key on a rubber ring around the neck, preferable to any other method. It absolutely cannot be lost, unless the bather is eaten by a shark.—Esther G. Babson, in Boston Transcript.

GOT MESSAGE FROM LIGHT

Famous Man of Letters Tells of Peculiar Effect Simple Happening Had on Schoolboy.

A friend of mine—an old painter, who went to school in the north of Scotland—described to me his experience. The dominie had one morning been particularly drastic in his methods, and this led to great concentration of thought among the pupils, while at the same time it did not in the least alter the usual current of their ideas. My friend, for instance, busied himself as usual, observing form and color, only with a keener zest and, as I have said, a more concentrated purpose. It was a spring morning, and, for the first time that year, a ray of sunshine came into the room, making a square of yellow light on the dusty floor at his feet. It was only at that particular period of the year such a thing was possible: later on there would be too many leaves on the trees, and in winter the sun was not in that quarter of the heavens. My friend was an unhappy and anxious schoolboy, but the events of that morning and the menaces of the dominie, combined with the sudden sunlight at his feet, made a new boy of him, and he looked at the square of brightness which stirred his heart. He received, as it were, his mystical message; and some time afterward, leaving school, he became a landscape painter.—John Butler Yeats.

More Than a Sign Post.

There was once a detective story written whose point lay in the manner in which a very familiar figure may escape observation. In the tale several persons swore no one had entered a certain building during a certain space of time. Afterward it was proved that the postman had visited the place at his accustomed time, but long habit had rendered him psychologically invisible to the witnesses.

So it is with the familiar figures upon our streets. How many times a day we may pass by the traffic cop, without perhaps realizing that he is something more than an animated sign post, until some act of courtesy awakens us to the fact that a "cop" is simply a man, and a gentleman at that. For, in spite of the many aggravations that must come during a day of directing traffic, most of these officers retain their good temper, and even go out of their way to assist or direct some passer-by.—Omaha World Herald.

Water for House Plants.

Water is essential to the life of plants, whether they be in the open ground or in pots, for only in the form of solutions in water can the roots suck up the juices of the earth, and it is the water circulating through the channels of the trunk and branches that permits the exchanges between the leaves and the rest of the vegetable.

Plants in a house should not be watered at regular stated intervals; do the plants out-of-doors receive rain on Tuesdays and Saturdays? They should be watered whenever they need it. This is the only safe rule. And we can tell when they need it by feeling the earth in which they are growing; so long as this feels moist the plants do not need water.

"Blarney" Not Out of Place.

Life at best pays back rather limited dividends, and knowing this, we should as we journey along time's thoroughfares, try, whenever the opportunity offers, to bring a smile to tired lips. Even though we must resort to a "bit of blarney" if we would accomplish this happy result, we certainly should do so. Such a course may displease the person who prides himself on calling a spade a spade every time, but folks who approve of toning down, as it were, the sharp edges of life, will feel no twinges of conscience for playing such a role, for there is all the difference in the world between base flattery and true and merited approval.—Exchange.

Fascinating Ukulele.

Many people, even now, may think of the ukulele as a Russian province, or an eastern title, yet it happens to be neither, but a small musical instrument which, according to a writer in the London Daily Chronicle, recently baffled the experience even of the customs man, who refused to recognize it as such and permitted its entry into England free of duty. The little South sea ukulele is not unlike a "fiddle that you play with your fingers," to the eye of the uninitiated, but all who hear it admit its sweetness and the charm of its plaintive voice. No doubt one of these days England will become aware of the fascination of the ukulele, even as America has already done. The customs man will then exact his legitimate toll, and a strange, wild music will haunt the London streets.

Meanest Man.

"The meanest man on earth," has been discovered.

Even insurance men, possessing most human traits, have revealed, occasional phases of meanness, but it remained for a clergyman, an ordained preacher of the gospel, to outclass superlatively all other contestants for the cross de gal.

This pastor, who resides within eye range of the Woolworth tower, makes a practice of charging claimants under life insurance policies a fee of 1 per cent of the face of the policy for filling out the clergyman's certificate on death claims.

The medal for concentrated and undiluted meanness is hereby awarded. The contest is ended.—Insurance Press.

Next Morning.

My brother told me this. Marie is his lady friend, Mrs. Hemming, the mother of his chum. He said:

"You know Marie has one of these bright-red sweaters. I took her to a dance in the park one night and she wore it. Some of the fuzz from the sweater rubbed off on my coat sleeve. Next morning I was in a rush to catch my train and forgot to brush it off. Mrs. Hemming and Dad were on the train and we all sat together. While I was talking Mrs. Hemming leaned over and began to pick this lint off my sleeve. Well, that was an embarrassing moment.—Chicago Tribune.

Plant All Animals Hate.

A most interesting plant is the Virginia wild ginger. There are several other species, as far south as Florida and northward to Connecticut. The plant grows in very hilly and wooded places, says the American Forestry Magazine, and is easily recognized by its kidney-shaped leaves and curious purplish brown flowers. These flowers grow one to a stem. No living thing will eat the bitter leaves, and, you rarely see the flower unless you hunt for it. It hides itself out of sight if possible.

ARBOR DAY AT PLAYGROUND.

School Children Plant 25 Trees on Playground.

One of the finest ceremonies ever held in this place was the Arbor Day celebration on the Playground on Monday. The entire schools of the town were massed on the lawn in front of the lodge and made a most impressive scene. The program was two songs, "Arbor Day" and "The Tree," by Fifth and Sixth Grades; Arbor Day Greetings by Elizabeth Evans; song, "Indian Summer," by Seventh and Eighth Grades; song, given by Second Grade of Meade School; recitation, "Trees," by Donald Weikert; songs "Arbor Day" and "Jacky Frost," by Third and Fourth Grades; short address, by Rev. Paul R. Pontius on "Purpose of Arbor Day"; song, Gettysburg High School "Cover Leaf Chorus"; song, given by Second Grade, High Street School.

Then came the planting of trees, many donated by the State Forestry Department, consisting of Norway and Silver Maples, pines, horse chestnut, spruce and other varieties. All the schools planted trees, the Colored School planting their tree on their own playground. As Monday was Roosevelt's birthday, his name was given to several trees, other popular names for trees were President Wilson, General Pershing, Governor Sproul, Cardinal Mercier, King Albert and General Joffre. The program was ready for last Friday but was postponed until Monday on account of the bad weather.

Big Property Transactions.

Harry B. Bender bought the Hotel Wagon from George Lynch this week and the suggestions of names for the place have all slid into the discard for surely there was no guess that it would be called Bender's Furniture Store. The purchaser proposes to convert the first floor into an up-to-date furniture store and the second and third floors will be converted into flats for residential purposes.

About the time this deal was going through George Lynch and Ken S. Lynch were closing with Frank Oberhart for the purchase of the goodwill and fixtures of the Eagle Hotel and a ten year lease for its operation. Mr. Oberhart having purchased the fixtures from Chas. S. Duncan, who has conducted the house for several years. According to rumors Messrs. Lynch propose to refurbish the Eagle Hotel and put it on a good condition for the automobile tourist trade.

Aaron W. Kinneman, Mrs. Cora M. Rahn and John F. Kinneman, heirs-at-law of the estate of Mrs. John Kinneman, have sold the real estate of the deceased, consisting of the home and property in Berwick township, near Walnut Grove school house, containing 12 acres, to John F. Kinneman for $2900 and the property located in Abbottstown, containing about five acres to Charles Crowl for $2250.

Dry Enforcement Law.

The war time prohibition enforcement bill vetoed by President Wilson has been passed over his veto by the House and Senate and is now a law. All drinks containing more than one half of one per cent of alcohol are unlawful. The enforcement of this act will close all saloons and hotel bars to all beverages except the soft drinks and woe unto the dealer caught with more than one half of one per cent alcohol in any of the soft drinks.

The enforcement bill also carries provisions for strict compliance with the constitutional amendment prohibition going into force Jan. 16, 1920.

THREE CORNER-STONES LAID.

At the Three New Buildings at the Hoffman Orphanage.

On last Tuesday over three hundred people witnessed the corner-stone laying of three new buildings at the George W. and Agnes Hoffman Orphanage in Mt. Joy township. The greater number of those present were attendants at the Potomac inn at Hanover. They went to the Orphanage in 71 automobiles. The three new buildings are the Emmanuel Cottage, the gift of Emmanuel Church, Hanover, for the larger girls; Zion's Cottage, for younger boys and girls, gift of Zion Classis, and the Maryland Classis Memorial Schoolhouse, marking the hundredth anniversary of the organization of the Classis. The cost of the construction of these cottages will total about $60,000.

The corner-stone ceremony was in charge of Rev. Andrew H. Smith, Superintendent of the Orphanage, Rev. F. S. Lindaman made the opening prayer and led in the responsive reading. The ceremony of laying the corner-stones were by Rev. Abner S. DeChant, D.D., of Emmanuel Church, Hanover, Elder John L. Berber, of Zion's Classis, and Rev. John W. Reinecker, president of the Maryland Classis. In the corner-stones was placed the last "Orphans' Home Number" of the "Reformed Church Messenger," the names of the 51 children who are now at the Home and those who left; the names of the Board of Directors, copy of program, names of contributors, events leading up to the construction of the buildings, and other articles.

Dr. DeChant, president of the Board then made an address in which was presented an exhaustive review of the minutes of Synod from the year of 1905 up to the present session, relating to the Orphanage. Step by step, from the very start, he took his hearers through the entire history of the Home up to the present time, giving them a comprehensive review of it. In concluding his remarks he took occasion to say in his usual characteristic way, "The Home has come to stay."

A luncheon was served the guests. Before the ceremonies closed Superintendent Smith presented Mrs. Agnes Hoffman, widow of George W. Hoffman, to the assembly and she was greeted with applause.

Big Celebration at St. James.

St. James Lutheran Church is going to have a four-day celebration next week, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Sunday. The event is to celebrate the burning of the mortgage given in the erection of the new church six years ago. Wednesday evening will be an historical night with all former living pastors there, Dr. G. W. Enders, Dr. A. R. Steck, and Dr. J. A. Clutz. Thursday will be a musical night with various musical numbers ending with a demonstration in Song of the Parable of the Prodigal Son. Friday night will be a reception to the ninety soldiers, sailors and nurses of the congregation, with music, address and presentation of medal to each.

Sunday will close the event with a special sermon by the pastor in the morning, and burning of the mortgage in the evening.

Cost of Old Pikes.

The old turnpikes have cost a tidy sum to buy but they were relics of the past and the time had come for them to go. The State officials declared that the Abbottstown pike from Hanover to East Berlin was the finest roadbed and in the best repair of any road purchased by the State Highway Department. For this reason the agreement was reached to pay the price asked. The cost of the old pikes largely in this county was as follows:

Abbottstown pike $65,000.00
Littlestown pike 34,562.50
McSherrystown pike 17,450.00

Carlisle pike $117,012.50
10,000.00

The price of the Carlisle pike was contributed by citizens along the route. Of the total of $117,012.50 to be paid for the other pikes the State pays one half and the remaining $58,506.25 will fall on the two counties, York county paying its proportion of several miles located in that county and balance by Adams county.

Ryde's Egg Mash

"Makes Them Lay"

That's what you want at the price of eggs to-day. Makes every hen a payer by producing eggs nearly all the time instead of about half the time. Eggs is a question of feed. Give hens egg-producing feed and they will produce the eggs. No feed, or the wrong kind of feed, means no eggs.

Ryde's Egg Mash

is an unequalled egg producer, containing animal and vegetable nutrition in the correct proportions to produce results. No guess work or experimenting on the part of the feeder. The increased egg yield overcomes the cost of the mash.

More Eggs, Better Eggs, Bigger Eggs

Try a bag to-day on those hens that are backward and you will be more than pleased with the results.

Ryde's Cream Calf Meal

is the best substitute for milk in feeding all young stock. It supplies them with all the food value found in whole milk in just as digestible a form and in the correct proportions. It does them just as much good as whole milk and you save more than half the feed bill. Every pound makes one gallon of gruel, or rich, nutritious, perfect milk substitute. You take no chances.

Elsie Takes Command

By WILL T. AMES

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

A ferry boat load of the shipyard crew piled pell-mell over the wharf, across the railroad tracks and onto the main thoroughfare of the town, at the foot of which lay the makeshift ship. They were roughly clad and grimy and strong, and many of them, hard-looking.

There had been a crisp game on the way coming over and it had not gone smoothly. Three of the men among the crowd showed the marks of it, for they were more or less bloody and still smarted from the blows.

Each with a friend or two, they stood on the foot of the wharf, and the sailors of the shipyard crew, who were paid no more than the town workers, looked on from the wharf. What was the matter? It was plain to be seen that the crowd was not of the town, but of the shipyard.

At the foot of the wharf, a crowd of men, some of them sailors, were gathered. They were looking at the crowd that was coming over the wharf. They were looking at the crowd that was coming over the wharf.

He spoke the girl at the same instant, said a brief word to the crowd, and she was automatically reaching out for the handles she carried.

The girl's eyes were shining. "What do you know, Billy? I found a place! A good-to-goodness apartment. Mrs. Ellis heard about a couple that are going out of town—somebody she knows. She's a good old thing, after all, Billy, and she went right down there and got them to keep still about it till we could get a chance at the place."

"I've been down today and engaged it. It's an old house, Billy, but there's three rooms and a bath—and only one other family, the folks that own it; they live downstairs. I guess they're boosting the rent two or three dollars. But we should worry—with your pay. It's our lucky day, isn't it, Billy?"

But Billy Noxon didn't respond to the happy mood of his young wife nearly as she had anticipated. While Elsie lay in wait for him there, she had expected that he would throw up his hands and shout. Places to live—to really live and keep house like regular civilized people—were simply unobtainable in the town. The Noxons had been "light housekeeping" in a single room for four months, like hundreds of others.

"Don't know as there's any use in fussing about it, Chick," the boy finally replied soberly. "We're likely to have to get to blazes out of this man's town any time now. The gang's pretty sore, and they're likely to tie a can, any time at all, to the bunch of grafters that are running the tea kettle factory over the river."

"What do you mean, Billy Noxon—a strike?"

"It's a heap-sight more than just a strike, when the blowoff comes. The working man has been carrying the ter end of the stick about as long as he's going to in this country. Here's you and me living like a couple of bums in a coop of a room and me sweating my hide off over there on those hulls—and a lot of leafers that don't hit a ship a lick from the time she's doped out till she's overboard, and haven't even got a dollar of their own money in the plant, pulling down millions."

"Living in palaces and dressing their wives in thousand-dollar furs and swelling around in limousines and playing golf while we play on a river gun—and all off us! All stolen from the working man and his family. And then, when we hit them for a lousy dollar a day raise, to help pay for the profiteering prices on the grub we eat, they give us the boot!"

"This was looking very splendid and studious," as her big husband, "Well?" she said, as he ran out of breath.

"Well," Billy resumed, "it's about all over, son. There's going to be some blood drawn, and that right quick. I'm going to be with you for us to change from the rooming place. May be well to be in the middle of a hard-fought ship in a week or two—and then, after that, some kind of a decent place in the city, with a decent salary. The way I started today at a passing thought."

The girl was about as much above her feet as her husband was an inch above his. Her eyes had grown bigger and she listened to his four words. Now she seized him by the arm and said: "Billy Noxon, you can't see what I mean."

"And don't you see, even if I don't, I'll tell you to the corner face of the boy the way to a successful grin as he permitted himself to be marshaled along six city blocks to the place where they lived in Mrs. Ellis' furnished second floor box."

we have after two years when we quit Roxbury and came here? We had $140, didn't we? We've been here four months, and how much have we got? We've got $490 of new money, that's what we've got. And it's clean money, Billy, honestly earned. I'd rather have that than a million that was grafted. We're not getting along so badly. Maybe somebody else is getting a whole lot more that doesn't deserve it half as much. But I guess these things will be straightened out if fellows like you don't go looney and spoil everything. Anyhow, you never had so much money ahead in your life, Billy Noxon, and I know it."

"Now, who's the head devil over there at the yard in getting up all this I. W. W. sentiment? Is it a black-muzzled fellow they call Saunderson?"

"Well, Saunderson's the smartest, most independent man in the yard, if that's what you mean, and not afraid to speak his mind. The fellows listen to him because he's there with the goods."

"I thought so. I sat behind him and some other anarchists in a street car yesterday, when he ought to have been at work, and I know what he thinks. I heard him tell the man with him that it was about time the 'boorzhwa' was kept from monopolizing everything, including the 'most beautiful and desirable wives'—that's exactly what he said, Billy Noxon."

"Well," responded Billy, rather dubiously, "the talent that a working man can't compete with a rich one for a girl, when he can't send her flowers and give her buzz-car rides and such things."

"Billy, you're a ship. He meant—because he said so—that the women ought to be nationalized. Understand that? Made the property of the men equally, like the food and the clothes and the houses and automobiles? He said it was too early to spring that idea yet, but it would surely come."

Billy tried to say something, but the little wife kept on. "Billy, I didn't tell you before, but twice that black devil has tried to pick me up on the street. Yesterday when he got up to leave the car he grinned at me and winked, and he said out of the corner of his mouth as he passed: 'Pretty peach!' Billy Noxon, do you want me nationalized—for Saunderson? Are you for the bolsheviks or for me?"

Billy Noxon found Saunderson in the yard next day, and hammered him for five minutes. He told him that he'd lick him every time he saw him. Wherefore, Saunderson is now agitating elsewhere, and there hasn't been any strike in the yard. Maybe everything is not exactly as it should be as between labor and capital, but as between Billy and Elsie, bolshevism hasn't a look-in.

PARAVANE PROVED ITS WORTH

No Vessel Protected by That Contrivance Is Known to Have Been Sunk by Mines.

The oddity of the word "paravane," as it now reaches the general public, shows how well an important secret was kept during the historic years 1917-18. During those years the invention, perfected at Portsmouth, England, was added to some 4,000 British vessels, and no case is known in which a ship thus protected was damaged by a sunken mine. Towed under water on both sides of the bow, the paravane, shaped like a kite, met the mooring wire of the sunken mine, deflected the hidden menace to a safe distance from the ship, severed its mooring, and left it free to come to the surface where it could be exploded by gun fire. Seamen naturally enough soon came to speak of the paravanes as "otters," and they enabled many a vessel to travel safely through mine-infested waters. Several hundred American ships had been thus equipped at the signing of the armistice, and it is a pleasing thought that the cessation of hostilities saved about $10,000,000 which the United States meant to spend in providing paravanes for American shipping.

Would Return the Favor.

Some years ago there was a Fourth of July celebration at a town in northern New York, where my father was pastor of a church. During the day several out of town couples came to the parsonage to be married, and one husky bridegroom as soon as the knot was tied, asked: "What are the damages?" Father replied that he made no particular charge for marrying people, but left the amount to the generosity of the groom. "Thank you," said the young man, "I'll do as much for you sometime," and walked out, leaving us all convulsed with laughter, but when they reached the street the bride would go no farther until Father came back and handed her a bill for a $2 bill—Exchange.

Size of Ocean Waves.

The size of the Atlantic ocean waves has been carefully measured for the hydrographic bureau, Washington. In height the waves usually average about 30 feet, but in rough weather they attain from 40 to 45 feet. During storms they are often from 500 to 600 feet long and last ten to eleven seconds, while the longest one yet known measured half a mile, and did not spend itself for 23 seconds.

Quest of Novelty.

"Henry, I must have a motorcar that is unlike anybody else's." "I don't see how we are going to arrange that, my dear. Most of the available models seem to be in use. However, we might persuade a manufacturer to build a car to order shaped like a bee hive, and you could buzz around in that."—Birmingham Age Herald.

SHOWED SPIRIT OF AMERICA

Connecticut Youth Good Example of the Men That Made Victory Over the Hun Certain.

What was the spirit, French, British, Italian, American, that made possible the day of the signing of peace? Well, as for the American spirit, a story which Gen. Clarence Edwards told me at St. Mihiel, has the meaning as I felt it, writes Lucian Swift Kirtland in Leslie's. He was visiting the hospital. Just as he was leaving a nurse ran after him. "A Connecticut boy," she said, "has heard you are here. He has begged me to ask you to see him. He's dying, but he doesn't know it. He says he has a great favor to ask." Just then the chaplain came and had the same request. They hurried back, the chaplain leading. The boy looked up and saw the chaplain.

"My God! Chaplain," he called out, "what are you looking so darn glum about? Just 'cause you think I'm going to die and you don't know how to tell me about it? H—, what did I come over here for? Didn't I come over here to die if that had to be the chance? Haven't I had my big chance? Have I failed? What the h— are you worrying about?"

Just then he saw the general. "Oh, General," he said, "excuse me for bothering you, but I'm dying. I know it. I don't want to ask for favors, but the Connecticut band is here, and I thought I'd ask you if you'd have them come and play just once outside here. I want to hear the 'Connecticut State March' just once more."

In a minute the band was there—and it was playing the strains of the march. The lad lifted himself up, a smile of satisfaction on his face. His arm beat the time of the music. He pretended to be leading the band. At the last note he dropped back to his pillow—dead.

OLD HOUSE TO BE MUSEUM

Movement for Preservation of Structure Identified With Early Days of Southern California.

A movement is on at Riverside, Cal., for the preservation of a number of the old landmarks of the vicinity, buildings and spots intimately connected with the early-day period of southern California. The plan is being fostered by the local chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution and the Pioneer society.

The first project to be undertaken is the restoration of the old Rubidoux home, an adobe structure, which was built by Indian labor three-quarters of a century ago. The Rubidoux family was one of the most prominent of the early Spanish residents, and the home was a social center for the interior section. Many of the notable events of history of the period just previous to the forty-niners are more or less intimately connected with this old building which in recent years has been abandoned and has begun to crumble away.

After the work of restoration is completed, the building will serve as a nucleus for a pioneer museum for the housing of many relics of the early days.

Mediterranean Air Base.

A far-reaching program of aviation in the French colonial possessions in Africa has been drawn up by the commission on aerial transports at Tunis. Algeria, which recommends that a great aerial transport center be established, with Tunis as its base, in order to centralize aerial traffic over the Mediterranean sea. Inasmuch as Tunis occupies an advantageous position, at the junction of French and international colonial possessions, a regular aerial service, it is urged, between Tunis and outlying districts would benefit the French protectorate. Already a line of airplanes is in operation between Gabes, an Algerian seaport, and the frontier of Tripoli; and this, in the expectation of colonial officials, will be extended to Tunis. So the "unchanging East" is fast becoming a by-word only of times past.

Flax in the War.

With restoration of the industry on a peace-time basis cotton once again goes ahead of linen in the world's favor. The exigencies of the recent conflict raised flax to the position as leader among fabrics, a rank which it had held for centuries but lost almost simultaneously with the advent of the cotton gin. With realization of the importance of cotton in the making of munitions, there came a speedy reversion to linen for the more commonplace uses—clothing, sails for ships, even "wings" for airplanes having lately consisted of linen. But flax has reached the end of its days of monopoly. King Cotton now rises to the fore in ordinary pursuits, and linen once again becomes the aristocrat in this field of supply.

Modern Radio Methods.

In these days of the radio compass and instant wireless communication, a ship at sea is in little danger of losing its way, says Popular Mechanics magazine. Recently the Louisville Bridge lost its bearings in a heavy fog off the coast of New Jersey, and was unable to find Ambrose channel into New York harbor. The operator called the navy yard, and within five minutes received the answer: "Your true bearing at 4:43 p. m. from Rockaway beach two hundred-ten, Sandy Hook sixty-seven, Mantoloking fifteen." The auto tourist asking the best route to town could hope for no more definite information than that.

Experts credit these two men with having been as important in the early world series victories of the Chicago Cubs as regular players, still neither wore a Red uniform nor played in the regular season. MESOPOTAMIA TO 'COME BACK'

Prophecy That Ancient Land Is to Be Redeemed From Present State of Barrenness.

It may be remembered that, when Gen. Sir Stanley Maude had to lay down his work with his life in Mesopotamia, that work was taken up and carried on successfully by Gen. Sir W. R. Marshall. The expedition which he sent up the Euphrates freed that river from the Turks, and just before the armistice the force which he led up the Tigris from Bagdad captured the entire Turkish army of 7,000 about 50 miles south of Mosul, the city which stands on the west bank opposite the ruins of Nineveh. Since then the country has had peace, and all the way north and west from Basra there has been a notable revival of commerce and agriculture, with a beginning of the great irrigation scheme devised by Sir William Wilcocks. It was through irrigation that in ancient times the land developed its extraordinary fertility, and traces remain of the network of canals that formed the center of Babylonia.

Is there to be a renewal of that fertility in place of the desert barrenness produced by Turkish neglect and misadministration? General Marshall, who has returned to England, is of that opinion. Speaking recently at Durham he made one very remarkable statement. As a result of experiments, he said, it was believed that Mesopotamia would become the finest cotton-growing country in the world. That is a large expectation, too large to disfigure cotton growers in other countries. Details of the experiments, showing surprising results, will have to be made known before the "sea island" territory of Georgia, South Carolina and Florida can believe that its supremacy is threatened by Mesopotamia, or that the beautiful four-stapled silky wool of its peculiar variety can be excelled anywhere.

AZORES AT A STANDSTILL

Population Has Shown Little Change in Last Century—Lost Trade in Sugar and Tobacco.

The population of the Azores is about 245,000, the number of inhabitants having changed but little in the last century, and, if anything, having diminished. This fact is probably due more to various political and social conditions than to climatic, agricultural, or other conditions of the islands. In the early days the Portuguese literally "raised cane" on the islands, and established a large sugar trade with England and other countries. Tobacco and fruits were also produced in great quantities, but, with the discovery and settlement of Brazil and other South American countries, Portugal rather discouraged production in the Azores in order to aid her colonies in South America. With the sugar and tobacco trade snatched from them, the Azoreans began the cultivation of the vine, and the making of wine and other liquors became one of the chief industries of the islands. The population consists mainly of Portuguese, Moorish, and Flemish settlers, with a few negroes and a fair sprinkling of English settlers.

Novel Apartment Building.

A San Francisco woman realty operator has planned a novel building. Her idea is to utilize a steep bluff 350 feet high. On it she proposes to erect a series of apartments running in stair-step fashion from the street down to the water of San Francisco bay.

It is proposed to have each apartment equipped with its own elevator entrance, pergola and roof garden, with a glass-covered inclined elevator connecting all with the private wharf for fishing and boating. Other features projected are a specially warmed sea-water bathing tank and glass inclosed and a heated playground for children on the beach. Steam heat, hot water, laundry, garage, billiard, club and ball rooms are to be provided as matters of course. The site commands a fine view of the Golden Gate and the sea outside, according to the prospectus, and it is said the apartments, which will rent at a prohibitive (for most of us) price, are already under lease, even before the building has been started.—Kansas City Star.

His Opinion.

"True, women's fashions are so immodest as to shock the pure," said J. Fuller Gloom. "The summers are also hotter and the winters colder than the over were before. Just as usual, the country is going headlong to the dogs. Every town in America has more fools and crooks and gossip to it in proportion to its size, than any other town in America. The poor are always growing poorer and the rich growing fatter. The end of the world is always at hand, and probably always will be. In fact, there is everlastingly something to howl about, if you want to howl. The women have always worn corsets—what they pleased in just the manner that suited them best, and there never was and never will be any help for it. And if their diaphanous garb (I tell you there is no law compelling you to keep edging around until you get a comely woman betwixt yourself and the sun, confound you!)—Kansas City Star.

Knew the Stock.

Thomas—Has the boss got any horses for sale?
The Groom—No, sir, but I reckon Mr. Smith has.

Thomas—Why?
The Groom—Well, the governor sold him a couple last week.

WHY LAMB AND MINT SAUCE

English Writer Goes Far Back to Trace Custom So Popular in That Country.

Lamb is the only meat with which mint sauce is partaken, and England is the only country where the custom is practiced.

The latter fact seems to disprove the idea that it originated with the Jews else it would have been adopted in other countries where the race predominates to an even greater extent than in our own. Hence, also, it could not have originated or been associated with the "bitter herbs" which were eaten with the Paschal lamb.

When one remembers what are the vegetables usually eaten with lamb, we get a clue to mint sauce. And it is one that leads us to what is probably the true reason of its combination with lamb. New potatoes and green peas are the adjuncts immemorial time has led us to associate with the flesh of the lamb. These, our forbears decided, were provocative of indigestion, and therefore an adjunct must be introduced to correct this tendency. Mint during all ages has been associated with such an office. The Latin poets have broken into song regarding its merits, and the giver of a feast never thought of laying the meat on the table until the boards had been scoured with this herb. So, in addition to being a corrective, mint had reputation as an appetizer. Gerard says, "The smell of mint doth stir up the mind and the taste to a greed; desire of meat."—London Tit-Bits.

"Yes," the other chimed in, "and it's the roughly speaking part that causes most of the trouble."

Find River Jordan Unclean.

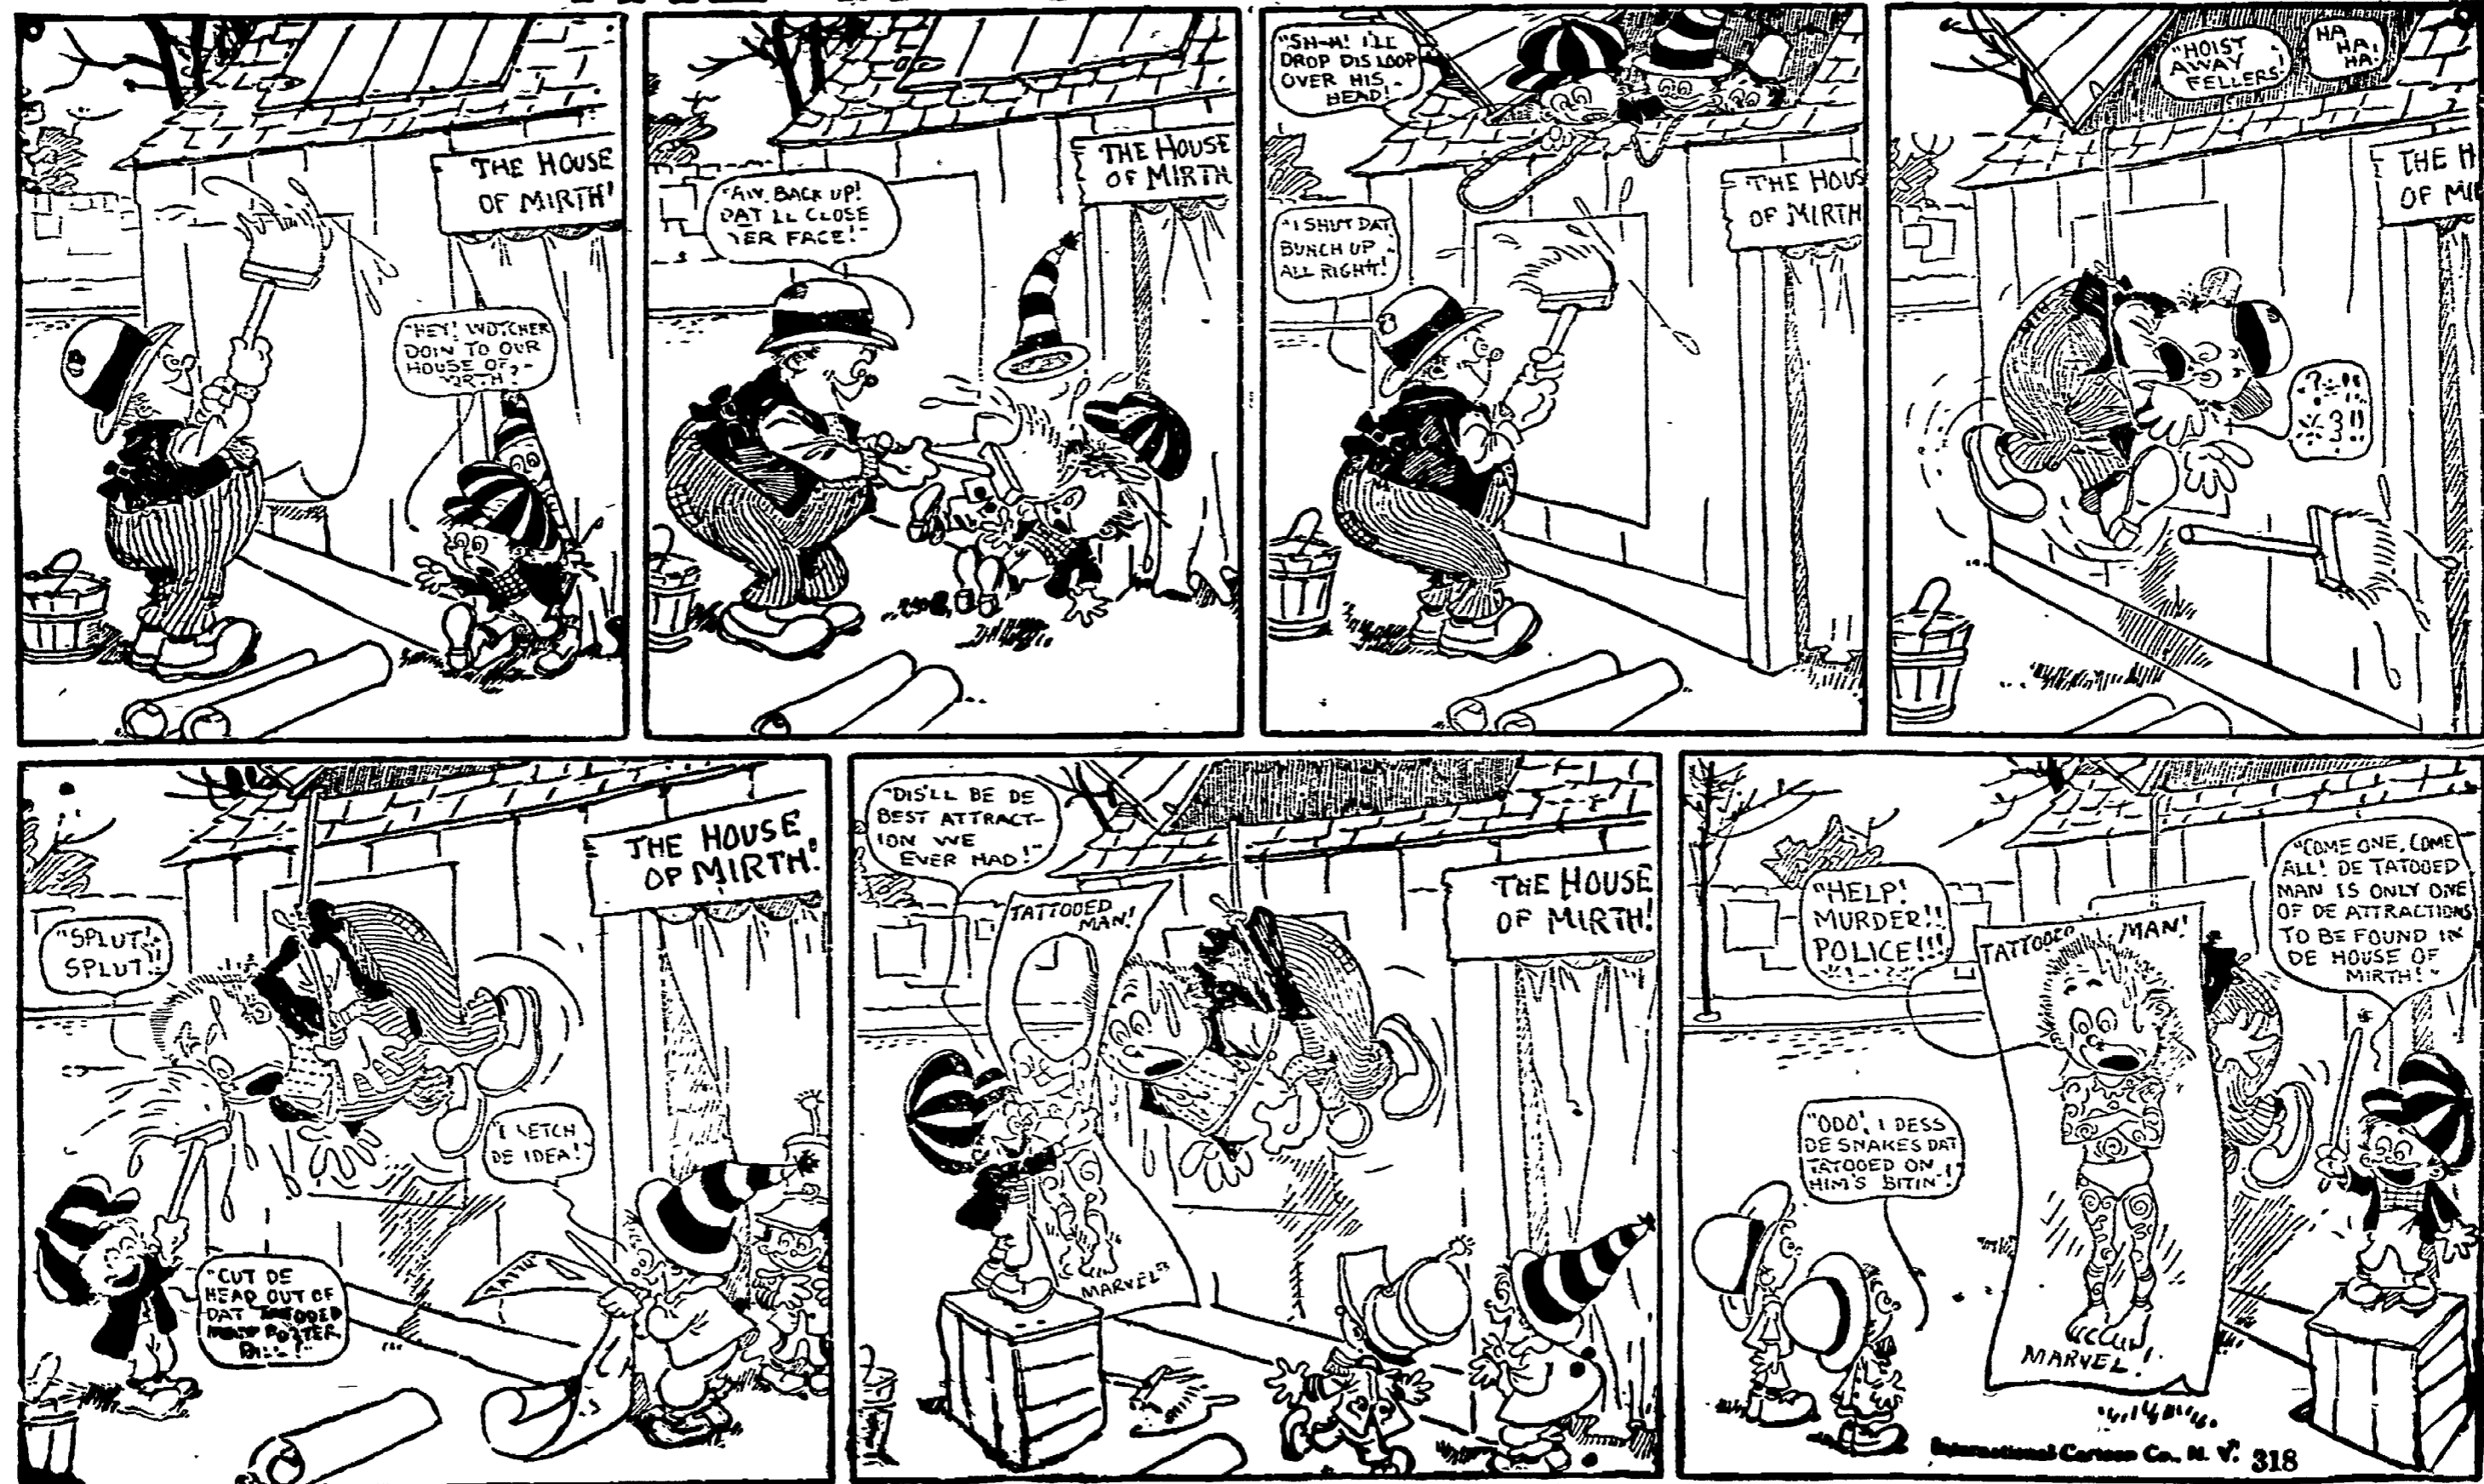

Bathing in the River Jordan, famous in sacred history, has lost its popularity as the result of the discovery by American physicians that it is a dangerous disease germ carrier.

One of the first steps taken by the American Red Cross unit reaching that region was an analysis of the river water. Red Cross headquarters here has been informed. It was found laden with the germs of skin diseases and other maladies. There has never before been restrictions on bathing in the stream, regardless of the physical conditions of the bathers, but the revelations of danger lurking in the Jordan's waters caused the local authorities to place a ban on the unrestricted bathing.

Offended Dignity.

Gertrude was on the lawn in front of the house, playing with the baby, aged two. Gertrude herself, not more than three times the other's age, was acting the part of mother. Presently along came a young man, who thought he understood children. "Good morning!" he said, taking off his hat. "How are you ladies today?" Gertrude looked at him with dignity. "Good morning," she replied, and went on attending to the baby. The young man stooped down, "Ah," he said, "and which is which?" "I'm Gertrude," replied the older girl, "and that's which."

Did you ever hear that short little poem which ends,

"You are late.
You've missed your date,
Fool, I'm Time,
I never wait?"

And if you have heard it before, did it ever occur to you, how costly waiting policies on the part of a great store could be to you—the public? If we were to be hesitant, slow to assume great responsibilities, slow to grasp golden opportunities, slow to be generous in extending shares of our gains, then there would never have been built the business we enjoy. The ideals of a store, like the ideals of a man, become imbedded in the nature of the being, and they continue, strong, undefeated throughout the ages. This, then, is a good thing to remember in selecting a place to trade. The institution which has carried through the years the burden of serving you in a helpful, beneficial way, always willing to satisfy you at all costs, will retain that policy, that ideal for ever. Be satisfied in every shopping trip you make, never know the discouragement of disappointment in merchandise, by pinning your faith to this store.

No matter what character of goods you desire—we are likely ready for you if it is generally stocked on a Dry Goods Store.
